

7th International Conference for Holistic Healing In Cancer

In collaboration with:

New Age Technologies in Cancer Management

Cancer research along with the work of many others across the globe, is painting an ever more complex picture of cancer.

Also the results are already highlighting the inadequacy of simple anatomical explanations of the disease.

But it's unlikely we will ever completely move away from describing the disease as 'breast', 'lung' or 'bowel' cancer, as these labels are clearly useful descriptions for patients and doctors alike.

What matters to patients is they have cancer and they want it cured.

The researchers used some eye-wateringly complex technology to chart several types of molecular changes in tumour cells. They looked not just at the basic DNA code, but also the scale of gene activity known as gene expression and the suite of proteins that were present in the tumour cells; the so-called proteome .

This conference will highlight the information and advancement of new age technologies in dealing with cancer .
